Publication of an Office Periodical by ORR

The staff study proposing the establishment of an ORR journal makes many pertinent comments regarding the importance of increased communication between rank and file analysts and management. However, the staff study assumes that the desired results must come about through the establishment of a new publication rather than improving existing ones. It is my opinion that all of the benefits to be derived from the publication of a weekly or monthly news letter could be accomplished by expansion and improvement of the Daily Dairy and increased dissemination of monthly reports originating at the division, area, and office level.
